

Do 'leaders' know best?

Could it be that our "community leaders" who are now supporting Bob Bisno's plans for Ponte Vista didn't do their best in their leadership roles for our community?

If Bisno believes he knows what is best for our community and certain "community leaders" support his claims, then perhaps these community leaders did not really know how to lead the community before Bisno came along.

It is sad to see too many folks who might consider themselves community leaders adhering to Bisno's plans. I guess they feel Bisno has a better pulse on what should be done with our community than so many others do.

Will Bisno ultimately succeed in building the number of condominiums he reportedly wishes to build? Almost certainly not, according to many real leaders in our community.

Might some of the community leaders who support Bisno's plans, whatever they finally come to be, come to regret their decisions to follow instead of lead? I believe so.

Our community is strong. A great many members of our community actually know what is best for our community. What is best for all of us is definitely not what Bob Bisno and the community leaders who support his plans think, in my opinion.
